ESL Sports Running Dictation Game Perfect for more advanced learners, this activity gets students moving around the classroom while utilizing various skills. Start by finding or creating a conversation between two people discussing their favorite sports to watch or play. Then, have students work together to record the dictation posted around the classroom and put the conversation into the correct order. ####2. Hot Potato Game Add some fun and excitement to your classes with this engaging activity! Students pass around an object (like a potato) while music plays or a timer counts down. When it stops, the person holding the object must complete a task related to sports. For example: * Name a sport on a flashcard * Spell a sport after saying it or looking at a flashcard * Create a sentence using an adverb or frequency and the sport ####3. Chain Spelling Vocabulary Review Game Ideal for children or absolute beginners, this game is a fun way to practice spelling vocabulary. Have students stand up and say a target word (or show a flashcard). They take turns spelling it letter by letter. If someone misses, they sit down and are out of the game. The winner is the last person left standing. Try these activities with your English classes today! Click here: "ESL Speaking Bingo Game". 4. Task-Based Activities: Engage your students with interactive task-based activities that change the pace from traditional communicative styles in ESL textbooks! The telephone English speaking game is an activity where students pass a message down the line, using sports or exercise vocabulary. Another popular activity is Sports ESL Charades, which uses charades to review vocabulary. Adverbs of frequency and sports are often combined in ESL textbooks. The article highlights several activities including ESL Vocabulary Activities, Choose your Own Adventure ESL Sports Writing Activity, Flashcards, Dialogue Substitution, and provides resources for each. To transform an ordinary sports lesson into something with deeper meaning, try these seven ESL activities: First, create a listening lesson plan focused on sports using this video guide. Next, use the "Picture Prompt" warm-up to activate students' prior knowledge of sports vocabulary by having them describe what they see in a picture with various sports equipment or people playing different sports. Another option is the "Taboo" game, where students must describe a secret word without using related words like this ESL game adaptation. You can also create your own lesson plan for sports tailored to your students' needs. Alternatively, try the "Man/Woman on the Street Interview Activity," which involves an interactive interview-style discussion on sports topics. For higher-level students, use the "Dictogloss" activity, where students take notes and work in pairs to recreate a passage about sports vocabulary at a faster-than-normal pace. Try out ESL Dictogloss Activity. ESL sport lesson #24: Just One Question This is a survey-style activity that I like to do a couple of times a semester. It's challenging but engaging and extremely interactive. Each pair has to come up with an interesting question related to sports, then ask classmates about their opinions. They have to compile the results and report back to the class. ESL sport lesson #25: The Memory Circle This is a fun activity for teaching ESL sports vocabulary to absolute beginners. Each student writes a key word on a piece of paper, folds it up, and passes it around. When someone gets a word they know, they say it out loud. The person who wrote the word then explains what it means. ESL sport lesson #26: ESL Sports Vocabulary Auction This activity requires some prep time but is totally worth it. Make up sentences with sports vocabulary and cut them into individual words. Put students in groups to bid on words in an auction, then they can trade words with other groups. The goal is to make as many grammatically correct sentences as possible. ESL sport lesson #27: Sports-Themed Activity - Discussion This activity encourages students to talk about sports in small groups. Here are some tips for setting this up: - Start by asking a question or sharing an interesting fact related to sports. - Encourage students to share their own experiences and thoughts on the topic. - Use visual aids like pictures or videos to make the discussion more engaging. - Monitor the conversation and provide guidance if needed. ESL sport lesson #28: Me Too! Students have to make a true statement about themselves related to sports. For example, "I think watching golf on TV is boring" or "I play soccer almost every day." If other students in the class agree with the statement, they can stand up and say "Me too!" ESL sport lesson #29: Flip Chart Sport Vocabulary Review Game This game helps review vocabulary related to sports. Write key words on flashcards or a flip chart, then ask students to come up with sentences using those words. Encourage them to use their own experiences and knowledge of the subject. ESL sport lesson #30: Use Realia Instead of using pictures or videos to explain equipment in sports, bring real objects into the classroom. This can make the lesson more engaging and fun for students. Want to know more about realia in sports ESL lesson plans?
